Letters of Intelligence, Speculative Pieces, tending to promote the Public Good, &c. will be always thankfully received.

The following Letters (among many others that have appeared, under the ſame Signatures, in ſeveral London Prints in September laſt) having been the Subject of general Converſation, and thought worthy of being preſerved in the Political Regiſter; they may perhaps not be unacceptable to our Readers.

To the PRINTER.

THE Particulars of Sir J—y A—'s diſmiſſion (which is at preſent the ſubject of much altercation) I am told, are as follows: For very urgent reaſons, it had been determined the Governor General of every province in America ſhould reſide. Upon which Lord H—— wrote a letter to Sir J——, acquainting him of this reſolution. After making very honourable mention of his ſervices in America, how much his country was obliged to him for that activity, ſtradineſs and courage which ſo eminently diſtinguiſhed the commander, and which from his example diffuſed itſelf through the whole army, by which means the Britiſh arms were crowned with ſucceſs, and the war ſo happily concluded in that part of the world, he mentioned the very high opinion his M——y had of him, both as a man and as a ſoldier, and how much it would be to his ſatisfaction, was it ſuitable to Sir J—y's inclinations and circumſtances, to go to Virginia and take upon him the ſupreme command in that province; but if it was not convenient, he might depend on it, that his M——y would take the earlieſt opportunity of doing juſtice to his merits by making him a recompence equivalent at leaſt to the loſs of his government.

This letter was ſcarce finiſhed, when Sir J—— A—— called at Lord H——'s on ſome other buſineſs. His Lordſhip took that opportunity to explain the intentions of adminiſtration by ſuch a meaſure, gave him the letter, and Sir J—— ſeemed to be convinced of the neceſſity of the arrangement, acquieſced in the propoſals made to him, and went away to all appearance well ſatisfied.

If it was next day, or not, I know not, Sir J—— very ſoon after demanded an audience of his M—y, and reſigned the command of his regiments.

This not being accepted of, and the miniſtry willing to keep ſuch a man in the ſervice, and not willing to give cauſe for his reſignation, endeavoured to reaſon with him; upon which he (Sir J— A—) delivered or ſent to the Duke of G— the following articles of accommodation:

I. A Britiſh peerage to himſelf, and failing heirs of his body, to deſcend to his brother the Colonel.

II. A recompence equivalent to the loſs of his government.

III. An excluſive right of working the coal mines at Lowſburgh to him and his heirs for ever.

IV. A grant of lands in America to a certain extent.

V. And in caſe it ſhould be judged expedient to create American peers, that he ſhould have the preeminence.

The Duke of G——, on receiving this, begged to ſee Sir J——, who ſent him word, if the interview was intended to induce him to lower his demands, it was totally unneceſſary. His Grace then went to him, and gave him the following anſwers:

I. Britiſh peerages were generally given to ſuch whoſe opulent fortunes enabled them to ſupport that high dignity. This reaſon he apprehended Sir J—— could not plead.

II. It always had been his M——y's intention to make him a recompence equivalent to his government.

III. Reaſons political and commercial forbade the working of the American coal-mines at all.

IV. He might have a grant of lands in America when, where, and to what extent he pleaſed; but he did not apprehend there was the leaſt reaſon to make the fifth demand, as he ſuppoſed a creation of American peers would never take place.

Sir J—— A——'s regiments are not given away.

I ſhall make no comment on this. I tell it as a fact, which I heard from what people call good authority.

CLEOFAS.

QUERIES.

I. WAS not Sir J—— A—— offered a perſion, producing (clear of all deductions) a ſum equable, if not exceeding, what he received from his government of Virginia,

II. Is it not ſaid as honourable to accept of a penſion, as to take a government on the condition of non-reſidence? the latter being in other words the ſame thing as a penſion, and in ſome meaſure an injuſtice to the people governed, to pocket the emoluments without diſcharging the duty for which they are given.

III. Has not oppoſition got hold of the above-mentioned Sir J——, and are they not raiſing a clamour about his reſignation (which was of their own contriving) in order to ſerve the purpoſes of faction?

IV. Have they not promiſed to give him, (when they ſhall come into power) ſomething greater than what he has reſigned?

NOON DAY.

To the Earl of ********

MY LORD,

IN the ordinary courſe of life, a regularity of accounts, a preciſion in point of fact, and a punctual adherence to dates, form a ſtrong preſumption of integrity. On the other hand, an apparent endeavour to perplex the order and ſimplicity of facts, to confound dates, and to wander from the main queſtion, are ſhrewd ſigns of a rotten cauſe and of a guilty conſcience. Let the public determine between your Lordſhip and me. You have forfeited all title to reſpect; but I ſhall treat you with tenderneſs and mercy, as I would a criminal at the bar of juſtice.

In your letter ſigned Cleofas, you are pleaſed to aſſume the character of a perſon half informed. We underſtand the uſe of this expedient. You avail yourſelf of every thing that can be ſaid for you by a third perſon, without being obliged to abide by the apology, if it ſhould fail you. My Lord, this is a paultry art, unworthy of your ſtations, unworthy of every thing but the cauſe you have undertaken to defend. While you purſue theſe artifices, it is impoſſible to know on what principles you really reſt your defence. But you may ſhift your ground as often as you pleaſe; you ſhall gain no advantage by it. Your Lordſhip, under the character of Cleofas, is exactly acquainted with particulars, which could only be known to a few perſons, while you totally forget a ſeries of facts known to thouſands. You can repeat every article of your own letter to Sir Jeffery Amherſt, though your own memory be too weak to recollect on what day Lord Botetourt's appointment was fixed, on what day he kiſſed hands, and on what day the deſign was opened to Sir Jeffery Amherſt. Theſe it ſeems are circumſtances of no importance, and to ſay the truth, I believe they are ſuch as you would willingly forget. I am glad to find however, that the acknowledgments of Sir Jeffery Amherſt's merit and ſervices could not be more full and formal than as it is ſtated in your letter to him. Upon that point then we are agreed.

You ſay Sir Jeffery Amherſt, at your firſt converſation, ſeemed ſatisfied. My Lord, I muſt tell you, that when a ſecretary of ſtate aſſures Sir Jeffery Amherſt that any particular meaſure is neceſſary for the King's ſervice, he is too good a ſubject to let his private intereſt in oppoſition to the public welfare. But did you tell him that his government was given away four days before? Did you not ſpeak of it as a meaſure in futurum, which was not to take place till he was perfectly ſatisfied? In ſhort, did you tell him that Lord Botetourt was to kiſs hands next morning? Anſwer theſe queſtions like a man and a gentleman.

When Sir Jeffery Amherſt found that all this pretended neceſſity of the K——g's ſervice ended in a proviſion for a ruined courtier, he felt the indignation of a man who has received an affront, not an injury. Your emiſſaries affect to ſay that he was deſired to repair to his government, and upon his refuſal was diſmiſſed. This you know was not the fact, ſo that every reaſoning built upon it falls to the ground. You never did nor could propoſe to him to return to America in a rank ſubordinate to General Gage. It never was a queſtion; and indeed how ſhould it, when his government was given away on the 31ſt of July, and he had not the moſt diſtant intimation that ſuch a meaſure was thought of, until Thurſday the 4th of Auguſt. Mark theſe dates, my Lord, for you ſhall not eſcape me.

After the affront had been fixed upon him in the groſſeſt manner, he was deſired to conſider what ſatisfaction he would accept of. He then ſent to the Duke of Grafton the demands, which you have ſtated to the public. Theſe are the anſwers to them ſhall now be conſidered. The word demand is peremptory and unfit to be made uſe of by a ſubject in a requeſt to the crown. It was never made uſe of by Sir J. A. though, for the matter of it, I aſſert without ſcruple, that a man of diſtinguiſhed public merit, who has been ſignally inſulted, is not in the caſe of a ſuppliant, but has a right to a ſignal reparation.

The Duke of G——n's idea of the proper object of a Britiſh peerage differs very materially from mine. His Grace, in the true ſpirit of buſineſs, looks for nothing but an opulent fortune; meaning I preſume the fortune which can purchaſe as well as maintain a title. We underſtand his Grace, and know who dictated that article. He has declared the terms on which Jews, gameſters, pedlars, and contractors [if they have ſenſe enough to take the hint] may riſe without difficulty into Britiſh peers. There was a time indeed, though not within his Grace's memory, when titles were the reward of public virtue, and when the crown did not think its revenues ill employed in contributing to ſupport the honours it had beſtowed. It is true his Grace's family derive their wealth and greatneſs from a different origin;—from a ſyſtem which it ſeems he is determined to revive. His confeſſion is frank at leaſt, and well becomes the candour of a young man. I dare ſay that if either his Grace or your Lordſhip had had the command of a ſeven years war in America, you would have taken care that poverty, however honourable, ſhould not have been an objection to your advancement;—you would not have ſtood in the predicament of Sir Jeffery Amherſt, who is refuſed a title of honour, becauſe he did not poſſeſs a fortune equal to it, at the expence of the public.

For the matter of a recompence equivalent to his government, he repeatedly told your Lordſhip that the name of penſion was grating to his ears; and that he would accept of no revenue that was not at the ſame time honorary. Your Lordſhip does not know the difference, but men of honour feel it.

If reaſons political and commercial forbid working the coal mines in America, that, I allow, is an reaſon ad hominem. It may be a true one; yet I do not deſpair of ſeeing theſe very mines hereafter granted to ſupport the chaſtity of a miniſter's whore, the integrity of a [illegible], or the unexampled blood of a baſtard.

His grace is wonderfully bountiful in the article of lands. I doubt not he would, with all his heart, give Sir Jeffery Amherſt the fee ſimple of every acre from the Miſſiſippi to California. But we ſhall be the leſs ſurpriſed at his generoſity, when we conſider that every private ſoldier, who had ſerved a certain time in America, was entitled to two hundred acres, and that not one man, out of perhaps twenty thouſand claimants, has yet ſettled upon his eſtate.

As to American Peerages, if none are to be created, the requeſt falls of courſe. But if ſuch a creation had been intended, I call upon your Lordſhip to point out a man better entitled to precedence upon that list than Sir Jeffery Amherst.

Your last assertion is, that his regiments are not given away. It is a matter of perfect indifference. Yet the public has reason to believe that Colonel Hotham is now Colonel of the 15th regiment, and that the commission of commandant of the Royal Americans only waits until it shall be determined, whether General Gage shall be recalled or not.

Permit me now to refer your Lordship to the questions stated in my last letter, and to desire you to answer them strictly. If you do not, the public will draw its own conclusions.

Your encomiasts, my Lord, have rather more zeal than discretion. One of them, who calls himself A Considerate Englishman, could not write by authority, because he is entirely unacquainted with facts. His declamation therefore signifies nothing. In his assertions however there is something really not unpleasant. He assures us that your Lordship's great abilities were brought into employment to correct the blunders of Mr. Pitt's administration. It puts me in mind of the consulship which Caligula intended for his horse, and of a project, which Buckhorse once entertained of obliging the learned world with a correct edition of the classics. LUCIUS.

CONSTANTINOPLE, August 1.

ORDERS have been given to complete the number of camels, mules, and other beasts of burthen, necessary for the service of the army; and to form several magazines of provisions on the Danube, and in Moldavia. A large quantity of rice is to be sent from this place; and preparations are making for the encampment of an army.

Toulon, Aug. 28. It is affirmed that as soon as the Marquis de Chauvelin arrived in Corsica, he was to publish the King's orders, setting forth, that by his treaty with the Genoese he was become sovereign of that island; that his Majesty was disposed to treat the inhabitants kindly, and maintain them in all their rights and privileges, provided they behaved with due submission to his authority; but that those who should take upon them to resist it, should be treated as rebels, &c. That after this declaration the Marquis de Chauvelin was to take possession of Corsica in the King's name, fix his arms in all the principal places, and establish the civil and military government. That the Marquis was then to proceed to the expulsion of the Jesuits, the places they are possessed of in that island, being necessary for his Majesty's troops. For this purpose 40 flat-bottomed boats were sent from hence the day before yesterday, which are to carry those Jesuits to the nearest port belonging to the Ecclesiastical State, where, if they are refused admittance, they are to be left upon the shore.

Vienna, Sept. 4. All our letters from Turky advise, that the Grand Seignor has declared war against Russia. The general rendezvous of the troops of the Grand Signor is at Verna, in Bulgaria; but the Divan has assured our court that the war is intended to be carried on against Russia only.

Leghorn, September 9. Our last letters from Corsica advise, that Paoli has established his camp in the neighbourhood of Olmetta, where he has 4000 men, who are well disciplined, and strongly disposed to fight the French, if they should attack them. Furiani is besieged by the French, but without success, their artillery being too far from the place. The Corsicans grow more and more determined to sell their liberty as dear as possible.

Versailles, September 14. The public, both in France and other countries, have hitherto been at a loss to account for the motive of the King's sending his troops to take possession of Corsica: The following edict, which his Majesty has thought proper to publish on this occasion, will explain the affair.

"Louis by the grace of God King of France and Navarre, to all to whom these presents shall come, greeting.

"The Serene republic of Genoa having entrusted in our hands, by a voluntary cession, the rights of sovereignty which she possessed over the Kingdom of Corsica, and having delivered to our troops the places which the Genoese occupied in that island, we have taken charge of the government and independant sovereignty of the kingdom of Corsica; and that the more willingly, as we hope to exercise it merely for the good of the people of that island, our new subjects.

"Our intention is to grant to the Corsican nation all the advantages they can desire, if they submit to our sovereign rights. We will preserve them from all future apprehensions with respect to the continuation of the disturbances by which they have been distressed for so many years past. We will watch over the prosperity, the glory and happiness of our dear people of Corsica in general, and of every individual in particular, with the sentiments of a paternal heart. We will maintain, upon our royal word, the conditions we have promised in regard to the form of Government, to the nation, and to those who shall shew themselves most zealous and most ready to submit to our obedience, and we hope that Nation, enjoying this advantage and our royal protection by such precious ties, will not put us upon treating them as rebels, and perpetuate in the island of Corsica disturbances which cannot but prove destructive to a people whom we have adopted with complacency among the number of our subjects. And in order that our intentions upon this head might be fully known, we have caused our seal to be put to these presents.

Given at Compeigne, the 5th day of August 1768, and in the 53d Year of our Reign.

(Signed) LOUIS."

And underneath, The Duke de Choiseul.

London, September 22. They talk now at the west of the town, and it is affirmed by many shrewd Politicians, that Corsica will actually submit to France, provided that restless nation will grant them a free trade, and some other immunities, which were always refused by their former masters. If this takes place, it is said, Paoli is to be created a Peer of France, with a handsome pension annexed thereto during life.

Yesterday there was a Levee at St. James's, afterwards there was a privy-council, said to be on account of North-American affairs.

Yesterday letters were received in town from the Earl of Bute at Bareges, in the South of France, which give an account that his Lordship is in much better state of health than he has enjoyed for a long time past.

September 23. Among other ceremonies used by the Porte in their late declaration against Russia, the royal standard has been planted against the imperial palace at Constantinople, as a signal of war. The pay of the Janissaries is also doubled.

They write from Toulon, that orders had just been received from court, to fit out the Entreprenant and Capricieux men of war of the line, with three frigates, and several transports and tenders, to sail with all expedition with several French regiments on board for Corsica.

London, Sept. 27. People have been much puzzled to account for L——d S——'s late voyage to Holland, the circumstances of his fitting out a vessel for the expedition, entirely navigated by his own servants, the secrecy with which it was conducted, and the foreigners who met him at Rotterdam, have not a little contributed to give an air of mystery to a trip which, perhaps, at bottom, was no more than one of his L——d——p's frolics of gallantry.

By the last letters from Hamburgh, we are informed, that there are some English officers at that place, enlisting troops. They have orders to form three regiments, to be sent directly from thence to America.

There is now living in the town of Hartley in Essex, one Arthur Jackson, a ploughman, aged 107, and his wife, aged 103, who have been married 81 years, and never had a child.

By a gentleman just arrived from Cadiz, we learn, that the Spaniards are greatly augmenting their marine, both in Europe and America.

They write from Brest, that the court had given orders for some additional fortifications to be erected at the mouth of the river Villaine.

If the Jesuits, to be transported from Corsica in the French flat bottomed boats which are gone there for that purpose, should not be received at the first port they shall land at, we are told the Marquis de Chauvelin has orders from his court to leave them on the naked shore.

Yesterday dispatches arrived in town from the Governor of Minorca, by which advice was received of the safe arrival of his Royal Highness the Duke of Cumberland at that place, in perfect health, the 1st instant.

We hear a manifesto from a certain great Northern power will soon make its appearance, addressed to the several powers of Europe, setting forth the motives and resolution of continuing her guarantee to the Polish Dissidents, in case of a rupture with the Turks, exhorting the concerned to join (in case of necessity) in support of vigorous measures against the common enemy of Christendom.

A private letter from Paris mentions, that two Corsican Chiefs, Signoirs Andreé Palladio and Giacomo Petruccio, had just arrived there from Marseilles, where they were landed by a French tartan, and met with a very favourable reception by the ministry.

They write from Cadiz, that they had received advice of the island of Juan Fernandez having been so disfigured by an earthquake, as hardly to be known for the same place by the most experienced navigators in the South Seas.

It is said Commodore Spry has sunk a French ship in the Mediterranean, for not paying the honours due to the British flag.

We are credibly informed, that a noble L——'s brother, who has been generally looked upon as an enemy to a certain popular gentleman, is now warm in his interest, which he intends to support in a spirited manner, in a certain great house, particularly with respect to his immediately taking his seat there, as representative for a certain great county, for which purpose he will strenuously support a motion which will be made on the meeting of the house, for demanding him out of his present disagreeable habitation.

Extract of a private letter from Berlin.

"It is generally believed here that it is owing to the political machinations of the courts of Vienna and Versailles, that the Grand Seignor has declared against the Russians, on purpose to strengthen the Polish confederacies, by drawing off the Russians, and thereby depriving his Polish Majesty and the Dissidents of their best friends. In short many judicious people think that the fate of the late unfortunate King Stanislaus awaits his Polish Majesty."

They write from Toulon, that Mr. Bompart, naval commander there, had received orders from court to equip several ships of the line, accompanied with Berka Longas, for an expedition to Corsica.

September 29. Letter from Paris of September the 19th, say, "By advices received from Corsica dated September third, we learn, that when the King's edict and ordinances, which contain certain promises and menaces made to the Corsicans, were sent the 27th of last month to Paoli, he convoked, the next day at Oletta, an assembly of the rebels; at which the above edicts and the Paris gazette of August 15th, were torn and trampled under feet, by all the chiefs, and at the breaking up of the council they cried out, with all their might, to the people, war! war!

"Tis said a formal declaration of war will be issued by the court of France against the Corsicans, if any European power shall think fit to lend an ear to their designs of reducing that Island to the power of France.

The Lords of the Treasury have appointed Robert Auchmuty, Esq; to be Judge of the Vice Admiralty Court of Boston in New-England.

Jared Ingersol, Esq; to be Judge of the Vice Admiralty Court at Philadelphia.

Jonathan Sewall, Esq; to be Judge of the Vice Admiralty Court at Halifax, in Nova-Scotia.

Augustus Johnston, Esq; to be Judge of the Vice Admiralty Court at Charles-Town, South-Carolina.

On Tuesday the two Princes of Saxe-Gotha, and the Venetian Embassador, sailed from Dover for Calais.

On Tuesday evening the youngest son of the Right Hon. Lord Bute arrived at his father's house in Audley-street, from France.

A certain great man we are told, begins to relax in his resentments against the Americans, which change of sentiment we hear, is probably owing to the near approach of the meeting of a certain august assembly, where it is affirmed the real friends to Great-Britain, and her colonies, will have a cool, fair, and impartial hearing, which it is hoped will be attended with happy consequences to the whole.

It is now strongly reported, that the Right Hon. the Earl of Shelburne will shortly resign his post as secretary of state for the southern department; and that his Lordship will be succeeded therein by the Right Hon. the Earl of Egmont.

It is also said, that the Right Hon. Ilaac Barré, Esq; will also resign as joint vice treasurer of Ireland; but we have not yet learned who is to succeed him.

It is the opinion of several judicious persons who are well acquainted with the present temper and disposition of the ministry, and of the most leading men in a certain august assembly, that a certain popular gentleman will be permitted to take his seat quietly therein, on a motion to be made for that purpose, without any opposition whatsoever, the present critical situation of affairs being of too much importance, to suffer the attention and time of the house to be engrossed by the ferment and squabbles of parties.

It is said that a certain public company, who, like the Americans have no actual representatives in a certain august house, have more virtual, i. e. interested ones there than all North Britain, owing to the good management of their agents on the late election; this was done to prevent their pockets being picked without their consent, as was lately the case.

A few days ago a lady of distinction, having lost an immense sum at cards, was obliged to take a solemn oath to abstain from all kinds of gaming for twelve months, to prevent the disagreeable consequence of a divorce from her husband.

October 5. Yesterday his Excellency Count Welderen had a long conference with his Majesty's Secretaries of State, in consequence of some dispatches received from his court.

Monday some dispatches of importance were received at the secretary of state's office from his Excellency Francis Bernard, Esq; Governor of New England.

It is reported, an order has been sent to Dublin to postpone the embarkation of the remainder of the Irish regiments for North-America, till farther notice.

It is affirmed, that an American Governor will be continued in his post, notwithstanding the loud complaints of a provincial party to have him superseded.

Yesterday morning divers Agents for the American Colonies attended the board of trade and plantations, on the business of their constituents.

It is said the difference which has, for some time past, subsisted between a certain minister and a great general, is at length amicably adjusted.

They write from Leghorn, that General Paoli had a very narrow escape from falling into an ambush of the French in the neighbourhood of Centuri, having his horse shot under him, but was timely relieved by a party of the Corsicans.

Letters from Italy by Monday's Holland mail advise, that a strong report prevails in that country, that an English squadron will soon appear at Nice, to be employed in such a manner as the King of Sardinia shall judge proper.

Extract of a Letter from Leghorn, September 10.

"A few days ago a French xebeque forcibly visited, and is said to have detained, an English ship laden with gunpowder and meal for the Corsicans; who, on their side sunk a French vessel, which was going to disembark some troops and ammunition in a small bay in the neighbourhood of Salvagi.

"The French have taken Nonza, Olmeta, Canari, Barettali, Luri, Meria, and Pino, on the side of San Fiorenzo, and Sisco, Pietracorvera, Biguglia, Lucisna, and Borgo, on the side of Bastia; but to be masters of Cape Corse, they must still take Rogliano, Centuri, Mortiglia, and Furiani: they are now attacking the last mentioned place, but as they have not been able to get their cannon over the height of Belvidere, have not yet made any great progress.

"Two French men of war, of sixty guns, advanced into the gulph of San Fiorenzo, in order to attack the forts of Mortella and Fornali; but they were both soon obliged to desist from their enterprize, and one of them met with such a warm reception from the fort of Fornali, that she must have sunk, had she not been assisted by a xebeque; part of her crew who got ashore were pursued by the peasants under the cannon of San Fiorenzo."

By letters from the Hague we are informed, that his Prussian Majesty has been for some time past indisposed, and that it was this disagreeable news that prevented Prince Henry of Prussia from paying his intended visit to the court of Great-Britain, as it determined his Highness to return home to Berlin immediately.

According to letters from Gibraltar, the merchants there, and at Minorca, are afraid of sending either ships or merchandize to Corsica, though the best market in the Mediterranean, lest they should be seized by the French.

CHARLES-TOWN, December 1.

CAPTAIN Puddicombe of the Ship of Hanibal, who arrived here the 22d ult. on the 21st, about ten Leagues to the Eastward of this Bar, saw a light Scooner lying on her Broadside; supposed to be one of our Coasters that suffered in the Gale of the 19th, four of them being still missing.

Letters from Providence, by Captain Asa Brown, dated the 19th past, confirm the Account we some Time since published, of the Arrival of his Excellency Thomas Shirley, Esq; his Majesty's new Governor of the Bahama-Islands, on the 18th of October; furnish us with the following Speech and Addresses; and inform us of the Dissolution of the General Assembly.

SPEECH of his Excellency THOMAS SHIRLEY, Esq; Captain-General, Governor, and Commander in Chief in and over the Bahama-Islands, Chancellor, Vice-Admiral, and Ordinary of the same.

Gentlemen of the Upper House of Assembly,
Mr. Speaker, and Gentlemen of the Lower House of Assembly,

IN my speech to you at the opening of this session, I acquainted you with my reasons for not then proceeding with you upon the business of the government, and therefore adjourned you to this day.

I am now, gentlemen to inform you, that this important part of his Majesty's dominions, is, at present, an object of his Royal attention, and am therefore directed by his Majesty's secretary of state, to take the earliest opportunity of transmitting to him, for his Majesty's information, a very particular account of the state and condition of all the Bahama-Islands (that of the Turk's-Island in particular) under my government; together with every information that may, in my judgment, enable his Majesty to pursue such measures, as shall correspond with his own Royal wishes for the prosperity and improvement of the Bahama-Islands: You may depend, gentlemen, upon my utmost attention, diligence and dispatch in the prosecution of a matter of so much consequence; and further I must assure you, that nothing will give me more satisfaction, than to be a means of procuring some mark of his Majesty's Royal indulgence, for promoting the trade and settlement of these islands, which are of such importance, particularly from their situation, as well as in many other respects, to the mother country; a point which I do not despair of being able to accomplish very soon.

I have now, gentlemen, only to recommend it to you to proceed upon the business of this session with all the dispatch the nature of it will admit of; in which you may depend upon my hearty concurrence.

Government-house, THOMAS SHIRLEY.
Nov. 3, 1768.

To his Excellency Thomas Shirley, Esq; Captain-General, Governor and Commander in Chief, in and over the Bahama Islands, Chancellor, Vice Admiral and Ordinary of the same;

The Humble ADDRESS of the Council.

May it please your Excellency,

WE, his Majesty's dutiful and loyal subjects, the council of the Bahama-Islands, beg leave to express our satisfaction on your being appointed Governor of the Bahama-Islands, and to congratulate your Excellency on your safe arrival in your government, where we sincerely hope you will enjoy an uninterrupted series of happiness.

We return your Excellency our unfeigned thanks for the pleasing information you have given us, of his Majesty's goodness in making this important part of his dominions a particular object of his Royal attention, and esteem ourselves very happy in being the subjects of so good a King, who extends his paternal care to every part of his dominions.

Permit us, Sir, to acknowledge ourselves much obliged to you for the kind assurances you have been pleased to give us, that your utmost diligence and dispatch shall be employed in communicating such a particular account of the state and condition of these Islands to the secretary of state, as may be a means of procuring some marks of his Majesty's Royal indulgence, in promoting the trade and settlement of these Islands; of which assurances we have not the least doubt, as they come from the immediate descendant of our late Governor, under whose administration we have lived many happy years, from his making the prosperity of the Bahama-Islands his particular attention.

We further beg leave to assure your Excellency, we shall have particular satisfaction in transacting the business of this session with all the dispatch in our power.

JOHN GAMBIER, President.

The Humble ADDRESS of the Assembly.

May it please your Excellency,

WE, his Majesty's most loyal and dutiful subjects the commons house of assembly of the Bahama-Islands, beg leave to congratulate your Excellency on your appointment to, and safe arrival at your government; and also to return you our sincere thanks for your speech of the eighth instant.

We gratefully acknowledge our most gracious Sovereign's paternal care of, and particular attention to, the welfare and happiness of his Majesty's subjects, the inhabitants of this colony, of which we have a recent instance in his choice of a gentleman for our Governor, whose merits and abilities give us the most lively prospects of a happy Æra under his administration; and to whose worthy father we have for some years past been indebted for every indulgence which could be granted by a good Governor to a grateful people; nor could our concern at his resignation be by any other means so happily alleviated as by the succession of your Excellency to his Honours, and our affections.

We humbly thank your Excellency, for the assurance you are so good as to give us of your attention to the interest of our constituents, and your intercession in our behalf, to procure some marks of his Majesty's Royal indulgence, for promoting the trade and settlement of these Islands; and shall think ourselves extremely happy, if we can, by any means which your Excellency shall be pleased to point out to us, be serviceable towards the attainment of so desirable an object.

Permit us to assure your Excellency, that your sentiments on every occasion, cannot fail of having the greatest weight with this house, as we are convinced they will be founded on just principles, and an affection for his Majesty's subjects intrusted to your care: we therefore beg leave to observe to your Excellency, that we will vigorously support you in the full execution of your power, which assurance we confidently give, as we are convinced you will never make a wrong use of it.

In conformity to your Excellency's recommendation, we shall immediately proceed on the necessary business of this session with the utmost dispatch, which we hope speedily to finish; animated thereto by a warm desire to shew your Excellency our readiness to concur in any thing which has the honour of your recommendation.

By order of the house,

FOUND on SATURDAY, the 19th of October last,
UPON Col. Beale's Wharf, a plain GOLD RING. The owner, describing it, and paying for this Advertisement, may have it again of THOMAS YOUNG.

WHEREAS the co-partnership of WARING & SHEPHEARD is expired, and they are desirous of closing their affairs very shortly, they therefore request the favour of all those indebted to them to make payment, or settle to their satisfaction, by the first day of January next.

N. B. The books of the said copartnership will be kept at Mr. Ralph Izard & Son's store, opposite the Lieutenant-Governor's.

SOUTH-CAROLINA.

By Order of His Honour the Lieu. Governor.

Notice is hereby given,

TO all perſons having any demands on the PUBLIC of this province, to deliver in accompts of the ſame, upon oath, on or before the 1ſt of January next, in order to be laid before the commons houſe of aſſembly.

JACOB MOTTE, Public-Treaſurer.

George Livingſton,

GAVE NOTICE, three ſeveral days, in Meſſrs. TIMOTHY and CROUCH's Papers, that the partnerſhip between him and Mr. CHAMPNEYS was at an end; and that he intended carrying on the Factorage Buſineſs at his the ſaid Mr. Champneys's Wharf:

SINCE which, and early after his appearance in theſe papers, Meſſrs. LIND and CHOVIN very kindly invited him to join with them; and having, by the advice of ſome gentlemen that were near at hand to conſult (and, for the better ſecurity and diſpatch of ſuch concerns as he may be entruſted with) accepted their invitation, he thinks it proper that he ſhould

INFORM HIS FRIENDS,

the buſineſs will be carried on at Mr. Burn's wharf, under the FIRM of LIVINGSTON, LIND, and CHOVIN.

He has nothing more to add, than aſſurances in his partners and his own name, of a ſtrict regard to orders, and the ſame fidelity and punctuality that he promiſed in his former Advertiſements.

N. B. We have LIGHT BOATS at command, ſo that we have it allways in our power to ſupply our Friends, whenever they pleaſe to order.

JOHN CHAMPNEYS,

FOLLOWS THE

Factorage Buſineſs

BY himſelf, and hopes for a continuance of the favours of his friends, as he will endeavour to give ſatisfaction to all who may pleaſe to employ him.

He alſo hopes for the continuance of thoſe Gentlemen's cuſtom, who have had their buſineſs done at the wharf, who may depend on the ſame diligence and conſtant attendance, as formerly. [3 m]
